No Patchwork!

One of the most encouraging features of a cure made by S. S. (Swift's Specific) is its permanency. Of all diseases, it is well known that those of the blood are the most obstinate, and therefore the most difficult to cure. The medical profession, in fact, have virtually admitted that a real, deepseated blood disease is beyond their skill.

Of course, their admission is not made in so many words, but actions speak louder than words, and their inability to cure, after months and often years of treatment, is sufficient evidence that diseases of the blood cannot be cured by doctors. Their mercurial mixtures, although taken faithfully, only cover up the symptoms of the disease, inducing the patient to feel that he is being cured; but when he is sooner or later seized with stiff joints, pain in the bones, etc., the evidence of the doctor's patchwork is conclusive. Such results cannot be expected from the use of S. S. S. Being purely vegetable, containing no harmful mineral ingredients, it is the only blood remedy which acts on the true principle of forcing the disease from the system, building up rather than tearing down the health. No loss of hair, no stiff joints, no decrepit mercurial wrecks result from the use of S.S.S.

Mr. H. L. Myers, of 100 Mulberry street, Newark, N. J., made the mistake of relying upon remedies based upon mineral ingredients, and for the hundreds of dollars which he invested received only disappointment in return. He says:

"I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease, which was in spots at first, but afterwards spread all over my body. These soon broke out into sores, and it is easy to imagine the suffering I endured.

"Before I became convinced that dured.

"Before I became convinced that the doctors could do no good I had spent a hundred dollars, which was really thrown away. I then tried various patent medicines, but they did not reach the disease. When I had finished my first bottle of S.S.S., I was greatly improved and was delighted with the result. The large red splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I regained my lost weight, became stronger, and my appetite greatly improved. I was soon entirely well, and my skin as clear as a piece of glass."

A LOVER WHO LOST.

The Trouble Was That His Rival Proved

More Enterprising.
"Just my infernal luck," growled one of our most eligible bachelors as he threw himself on a couch and looked daggers at his closest male friend, as though he were the dispenser of fate. "If a fellow wants to get married and fulfill his proper destiny in life, fortune trips him up and makes a fool of him. You know that I've popped to three or four girls, and in every case I've been just too late. You may put it down now that if I ever marry a woman she will do the proposing and make all the preliminary arrangements.' Scored another failure?"

"Yes; lost by an eyebrow, as usual. You recall that divine creature I point ed out to you from the club window the other day? That little Ruddins and I have both been sweet on her-rivals, I suppose you would say. I called where she is visiting early last evening to put my fate to the test. While I was screwing my courage up to the sticking point and trying to separate her from the other people there she was called by one of the servants. She came back looking so rosy and sweet that I pushed matters, piloted her to a side veranda and told her, with all the gush and sentimentalism of some callow youth, how I loved her, how I could not live without her. She never looked more autiful than when she told how sorry to cause me pain, but she had just accepted Mr. Ruddins by telephone. It was to talk with him that she had been called by the servant. I stammered my way to the hat rack and out of the house the best I could. The impudent little rascal! He knew I was going there, for I told him myself, and I went early for the express purpose of heading him off. No other man would have had the cold herve to propose by telephone. If any girl wants me after this, she knows where to find me."—Detroit Free Press.

DAN'S PRIVATE MARK

FOUND ON A MOSQUITO, IT SAVED HARDIN'S LIFE.

Neither Knife Nor Branding Iron Was Used on That Ranch, as the Owner Was a Pretty Fair Shot and Always Kept In

"Them was pretty good shots," said the old sheep raiser when the boys had finished telling about some glass ball shooting they had done at the gun club tournament, "but olks nowadays don't do no shootin like they did a few years ago. There was Dan Hardin now, who run a sheep ranch in west Texas in 1881; he could shoot."

"Pretty good shot, was he?" asked

"Well, he was a good, fair shot for them times and locality. A Colt's 45 was Dan's favorite. He run about 6,000 sheep and a good many cattle and horses. The ranchers all marked the ears of their stock, each man in a different way, to distinguish their property. Dan's mark was a hole in the left ear and an underbit in the right, and he never allowed a knife to be used on his ranch. He marked every animal himself with his six shooter, and he never made a mistake. It was a sight to see him gallopin across the prairie on his mustang after a bunch of lambs or a round up of spring calves, a-placin his marks with his 45 and never varyin a sixteenth of an inch from where they belonged. Dan marked more mavericks than anybody else in the country put

"From practicin so much Dan got to be a first rate shot. He used to ride along in his pasture and put his mark on the coyotes and jack rabbits just to keep his hand in. It got so that nine times out of ten when a man killed a dear with his winchester he would find deer with his winchester he would find a hole in its left and an underbit in its right ear, and he'd always send Dan over a quarter of venison when he got it home. I seen Dan win a bet of $50 one day from a tenderfoot. We was ridin along the road and we seen the ground a-humpin up where a mole was shovin along out of sight under the Dan made his proposition, the earth. tenderfoot took him up, and Dan's old 45 went off a couple of times. We dug the mole up, and there was the marks in his ears right where they belonged. After awhile I don't think there was a living thing on Dan's ranch except his wife's that didn't have his mark in its

"This habit of Dan's got him out of a pretty bad scrape one time. Along about 1882, when free range commenced gettin scarce, the fence cutters got to cuttin the wire fences around the pastures and give the sheep men lots of trouble. Dan's had been cut half a dozen times, and he was mad. One day he rode out without his gun and saw a low down rustler named Tompkins slicin his wires like fiddlestrings with a pair of nippers. Tompkins got on his horse and let out, and Dan rode back to his ranch and got his gun. He struck out on Tompkins' trail and overhauled him about sundown in the little town that was the county seat. Dan shot him quietly and was about to get a cup of coffee and start back home when he was surprised by the sheriff's arrestin him. You see, that was about the time the law and order gang got to raisin Cain in the west and tryin to set down Cain in the west and trym to set down on promiscuous shootin and personal liberty. They scared up a judge and a jury somewere and held a kind of court right away to try Dan. Tompkins had a lot of friends in town, among the hoss thieves and free grassers, and they come in by the dozen and swore that Tompkins hadn't been out of town for a week, and that Dan's story about his cuttin the fence didn't go. Dan had no witnesses, and it began to look kind of funny for him. They had Tompkins laid out on a table in the conrtroom. "Directly Dan went over and looked pretty sharp at Tompkins, and then he asked one of the deputies to go out to a little jewelry store across the street and bring a magnifying glass. The deputy a got it, and Dan handed it to the judge and asked him to step down and look at something a minute. There was a mosquito with his bill fast in Tompkins' ear, and Dan asked the judge to take a good look at it with the glass. The judge did so, and blest if that mosquito didn't have a hole in its left and an underbit in its right ear, as shore as I'm sitting here. Everybody knew Dan's mark, and the court was convinced that Tompkins must have been prowlin round his ranch. It was you would call good circumstantial evidence, and ten minutes afterward Dan was on his way home.'

There was a little silence among the boys, and then the one who had broken 45 glass balls out of a possible 50 suggested that some lemonade be handed around at his expense. - Washington

Antwerp's Bells.

From the cathedral tower at Antwerp 80 bells have, for over 200 years, rung out music for the benefit of the people living on the green fields which border the Scheldt. Once a year, in the month of February, the authorities select the music, and the organ plays every hour from the old masters of Christian song.

A Professional Bird Catcher.

Berlin pays a salary to a professional bird catcher, who keeps scientific and educational institutions supplied with birds, birds' nests and eggs, and he is the only man in the empire permitted to do so.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY.

One of the most prominent of the Klondike heroes is Clarence Berry, who brought out of the Yukon goldfields about $135,000 worth of gold dust and nuggets and is part owner in five pay-ing claims near Dawson City. Three years ago. Berry was a poor farmer in Fresno, Cal. When he first heard of the

CLARENCE BERRY.

Yukon goldfields, he sold out and went to Alaska. He passed his first winter at Forty Mile camp, where he worked a claim that paid him but little. Then he returned to California and married Miss Ethel Bush. On March 15, 1896, he and his bride started for the goldfields. They reached there after a hazardous trip of 30 days over the mountains and frozen wastes, and when the strike on the Klondike was made Berry was on hand to locate a rich claim. He is 30 years old now, and the prospects are that before he is five years older he will be a millionaire.

Senator Hansbrough's Bride

Miss Mary Berri Chapman, who is soon to become the bride of Senator Henry C. Hansbrough of North Dakota, is a young woman of 22 who is al-ready distinguished in Washington society circles not only for her beauty, but for her talents. She has written a book of poems entitled "Lyrics of Love

MISS MARY BERRI CHAPMAN. and Nature" and not a little prose, one of her short fiction stories, "A Fashion-able Hero," appearing in one of the leading magazines for August. Miss Chapman is also accomplished as a painter and as a musician. She lives with her widowed mother in Washington most of the time. Senator Hans-brough is a widower of 49 and met Miss Chapman less than three months ago. It was a case of love at first sight, and the announcement of the senator's engagement followed soon after.

Father of the Yukon.

Jack McQuesten, known in Alaska as the Father of the Yukon, well deserves the title, for he has been in that frozen region for 26 years. He is not one of those who have come out with big piles of gold dust and nuggets. Neither is he among the unfortunates who got nothing at all, but in spite of his long experience in gold hunting Jack McQuesten was unfortunate in locating a claim in Klondike. When last heard from,

JACK M'QUESTEN, FATHER OF THE YUKON. however, he had an interest in several claims which will probably net him a handsome fortune. McQuesten went to Alaska as an employee of the Hudson Bay company, but from trading went to prospecting. He has grub staked many a poor miner and is known all through the region for his numerous acts of generosity. He is the founder of the Alaska Pioneers' society, members of which must have lived for seven consecutive years in the territory.

Mourning Customs.

A widow continues, no matter how deep her mourning may be, to wear her engagement and wedding rings. After six months the long crape veil is thrown back from the face. In this connection The Ladies' Home Journal says: After six months the long crape veil is thrown back from the face. So called mourning hats are not good form for widows. After the veil is laid aside a small, dull silk bonnet is worn, and after that all black, and then colors if wished. In extremely warm weather a widow may wear dresses of plain black dimity or lawn, with cuffs and collar of sheer white lawn

Two New England Churches

There are Catholic communities, both in America and in the old world, Alvan F. Sanborn in The Atlantic, where an extreme wretchedness in the dwellings is at once partially explained by the richness and beauty of the churches. But not so in Dickerman. On the contrary, both the Dickerman churches are of a piece with their surroundings. The Congregational church, more than a century old (Orthodox is the name it still goes by), was a worthy structure in its day and would be so yet had it been kept in good remain. Also had it been kept in good repair. Alas, it is only the ghost of its former pretentions self. Its sills are badly rotted. Its spire and belfry have been shattered by lightning and imperfectly restored. Its roof is leaky, the clapboards of its walls are warped and blistered, and its heavy hall once sweet the state of the are warped and blistered, and its heavy bell, once sweet of tone, is cracked and dissonant. The Baptist church, built only a few years ago, mainly at the expense of a church building society, is one of the shoddily constructed many gabled atrecities due to the malign influence of the so called Queen Annerestoration. Its original coat of paint of many colors has mostly soaked into the surrounding soil. Its panes of stainthe surrounding soil. Its panes of stained glass, as they have been broken from time to time, have been replaced by ordinary window glass, with piebald uncanny results.

The Visiting Pitcher.

Many baseball enthusiasts think it quite the thing to hoot and how! at the visiting pitcher. The practice referred to does not find favor with all, as can be seen by the following from the Richmond Dispatch: "Such scenes as described above have occurred in this city. They should not be permitted, however. One of the greatest faults the Richmond public has is in its attempts to intimidate catchers on the run for foul flies. It is all wrong, though."-Boston Her-
